“A Vote of Thanks”: The university was thankful to have the state legislators on campus this past week. The university as it stands is run on 16 to 18 percent allotted from the state appropriation fund to the educational institutions of the state. The hope for the day when the administration will be able to turn all its attention to educational matters remains.

“Results---at Last!”: Juniors and Seniors, according to all indications, will in majority vote for the juking of the current three term plan in place at the university. It is to be hoped the step of these upperclassmen will be doubled by freshmen and sophomores. A change in the system is desirable, and now is the time for students to support the matter with voting for a two term plan.

“Keep It Secret”: A newspaper piece reporting that the university had banned photographs being taken of the coed participants in the sorority swimming meet held last week appeared in a downtown daily a short time ago. This is not progressive for the university, and the author of this article feels that it is outdated and distasteful for the university to ban such photography.

“Dunn Will Throw Bull in Keeping with Promenade Theme: Students are anxious to know the theme of the Junior Prom. The theme has been kept secret in years past. The theme is now known to be Spanish American, as the author of this article was able to sneak into a committee meeting. There will be several measures taken to promote the theme, including costumes and flags.

“Side Glances”

“Conflict in Far East Looms for U.S. Japan Moves South”: The Imperial Japanese battle fleet is at the moment poised within 48 hours striking distance of rich Dutch and British East Indies. This article delves into the current threat that the Japanese pose to the safety of allies in the western hemisphere.

“Letters to the Editor”: This week’s letters include complaints in regards to the university using placement exams to place students in classes dependent on their performance. The author feels this actually doesn’t help improve the lower scoring students, it rather makes them feel inferior.

“Two Minute Portraits”: A picture is placed in the middle of two paragraphs that describe the man in the picture. There are hints within the text that will lead the reader to be able to guess his identity. There is also some comedic commentary as well as some satirical content.

“Keep The Change”: This article is dedicated to changes or events occurring at other colleges around the nation. It references stories from several other universities. By doing this, the author sparks conversation regarding possible change here at the U.

“The Utah Chronicle”: Here tells when the Chronicle was established and where it’s run. This is also a list of students involved with the paper and what they do.

“Ninety-First Birthday”: It’s the eve of the ninety-first birthday of the university. The university is compared to the 94-year-old state, as they both started from humble beginnings with no money. A handful of students started out in a private home with few books to start the university but has grown to 22 buildings and 4500 students. Founders’ Day is celebrated as reminder to students of how far education has come since then.

“Our Best Wishes”: With the coed running the Chronicle the following week, the student body and the university staff wish them luck. A reward of personal satisfaction will come the day after the paper is released from knowing that the women have done their best and undertook an incredible job. The men will take a well-needed break.

“Begin at Home”: Articles by prominent writers are being created illuminating commendable character traits and especially the shortcomings of the nation’s youth. Students are disregarding traditions and unwilling to believe in any sort of ideals. Without upholding traditions, students’ days at universities will be meaningless.

“Frank Allen: Slalom Allen Explains Pointers On How to Do Hari Kari on Skis”: The Ski Carnival should have ended two weeks ago. No one wanted to follow Marie Folsom down the mountain in fear of being arrested for running into the lodge to stop. Many ways to stop on skis were explained. Skiers were also warned to look out for avalanches.

“Side Glances”: Bennett Glass and Paint Company will be sponsoring the Founders’ day three-gun salute. Editor Hammond and Heber Hart were both mentioned in the article.

“Letters to the Editor”: The first letter to the editor of the Chronicle was from Alan Toronto answering the question students have of why there needs to be lower division requirements when they know what they want to go into. Toronto stated that every student needed a round, basic education that will help in their degree. Another letter was written to point out the lunch paper litter left around the Park building and calling for a change. Dean Austin and Dean Ballif were mentioned as leaving papers on the ground as well.

“What’s Doing at Other Colleges Keep the Change”: What other students are doing around the country is reported on under the topics “Sound Men,” “Slight Error,” “Keep ‘em Covered,” “Non-Pampered Patient,” and “Double Talk.” Students from other universities have built radio wind and weather satellites, made tux mistakes, voted women to be modest, got photos taken away at hospitals, and Romeos professing love.

“Meet the Gang: Two Minute Portraits”: This is a gentleman who is liked by everyone, sells ads for the rag, his nickname is “Gunga,” acted in the play “I killed the Count,” and so much more. The readers are supposed to guess who it is.

“Richard H. Stevens: Ignorance Hinders Inter-American Amnity Cooperation”: It’s becoming more apparent that the U.S.’s security is dependent on Central and South America as Hitler moves through Europe. The U.S. has many differences from other countries socially, economically, and politically. Latin America especially is inferior to the nations in Central and South America because they live in poverty, which puts them at a disadvantage. Latin America feels that the U.S. is a bigger threat to their freedom and well-being than Japan and Nazi-Germany.

“The Utah Chronicle”: Here is the list of names of everyone who was involved in this specific edition of the Chronicle.

“Our Admiration Of –”: Every girl has been given the opportunity to participate in an active collegiate group if they wish. Helen Smith, leadership of the A.W.S., aims to make college life more pleasant for every girl under the watchful eye of Dean Myrtle Austin. The staff of the women’s edition of the Chronicle wanted to express admiration toward the organization who made the edition possible.

“Women Suffrage”: The women on campus are wanting a game room for themselves in the Union Building. Men have their game room that coeds aren’t allowed to enter. Women aren’t asking to share, but only to have a room as such for their enjoyment.

“Why Semesters?”: Many still have the question of why terms have been turned into semesters. The semester system will be put to a student vote during elections in spring quarter. Supposedly there would be some advantages from the semesters such as a better set up for vacations, and there would only be two weeks of final exams.

“Dolores Alston: Coed Tells in Verse All About Men! What Could Be Worse!”: Two poems are quoted about how much men need women. Wherever men are, women will be too.

“Side Glances”: Darwin’s evolutionary ideas have appealed to Hitler. Students rebel against the anti-smoke ordinance in the Union Building. Spring and test week arrive at the same time.

“Letters to the Editor”: The first letter from M. H. stated how much the student body and assembly committee felt so welcomed at B.Y.U. when they presented their assembly, so the least the U. student body could do was to make B.Y.U. feel welcomed when they come here. Everyone wants the assemblies to be entertaining, but they need to stop being so self-centered. Neil P. Richards wrote the second letter about how the United States Office of Education wants to add a summer semester to the engineering program in order to get students through quicker. Richards feels that it places too much pressure on the already stressed students and faculty.

“Meet the Gang: Two-Minute Portrait”: She’s the campus queen, honored by the men. She has enough dates. This woman will most likely vote against the semester system. The woman is the A.W.S. It’s once the men won’t have to guess who it is.

“Emily Neff: Scribe Champions Need of Fewer Classes, Free Cadavers, Buicks”: The students are compared to the working class that don’t get a vote in anything. Students should rise up and rebel. The university faculty will be deprived of salaries and forced to take classes. Each department will contribute to campus maintenance. Students should get Buicks and other gifts as they graduate. The students have to unite.

“Americana Theme Dominates Fashions”: With lots of competition on campus, women need to dress to impress in order to get that prom date they want. One of the most popular outfits includes a crisp tailored navy and white check, just as Annabelle White has chosen to wear. Belts, shoes, and other bright accessories have started to become popular. Lastly, men do not like women to wear bandanas or scarves of any sort.

“Knitting Group Plans Red Cross Work”: All women that are interested in knitting for the Red Cross will meet in the women’s lounge of the Union Building. If you want to knit, but don’t know how, you are still encouraged to go, others will be able to teach you.

“Society Seeks Literary Pursuits”: Chi Delta Phi choose new members to join every spring and fall. Along with the application needs to be an original piece of writing by the applicant. Meetings are held twice a month for this group with Dr. Harold Folland as the faculty sponsor. The officers in place now are Isobel Gagian, Lois Powell, Katherine Wolfe, Betty Jo Snow, and Beatrice Cottam.

“Philologist Lauds America as Women’s Paradise”: After living in Europe for 40 years, local language instructor, Mrs. Brigg A. Perkins tells about how women in Europe refer to America as the “paradise for women.” This is because the women here are recognized as men’s intellectual, unlike in Europe where they don’t make a difference. Having travelled all throughout Europe, Russia, and Bulgaria, Mrs. Perkins was able to see how little rights that women in other countries have compared to the United States.

“Variety of Parties Highlights Campus Groups’ Activities”: Kappa Kappa Gamma elected a new president and officers. Delta Gamma is planning a number of parties due to a visit from Mrs. Louis Quam. Delta Phi had initiation ceremonies. Many other campus groups have had parties, ceremonies, and banquets as well.

“Marianne Bailey Comments...”: It never occurred to Marianne Bailey how much red hair made a difference until shopping with Helen Smith. Trying on the same dress made a huge difference when Bailey found Smith to look much better in a dress because of her hair color.

“Choice Contestants to Compete for ‘King of Campus’”: “King of Campus” contestants are interviewed to help know what they need to work on and also to help choose who to vote for. Every contestant is given a brief description.

“The Utah Chronicle”: A list of all the people involved in this edition of the Chronicle with what they did.

“An Oversight”: The Chronicle has missed one important part of the university that it rarely covers, the faculty members. Universities are never known from their students, but they’re remember from the staff and their published works. The Chronicle acknowledges its mistake and wants to recognize how much professors and faculty really do for the University.

“A Wise Move”: The English department made a valuable change in creating classes for elementary journalism last week. Without journalism classes, the Chronicle wouldn’t be what it is today, and it will benefit from these class additions. Special thanks go to Dr. Robert A. Crabtree for instigating the creation of the classes.

“We Won’t Relent”: Several complaints have been made toward the misuse of the Union building. As it is such an expensive building that not every college has the luxury of having, the university is letting it go to waste. The Union building needs updates in order to keep up with times and give every student and faculty member a place to go. The space should be used accurately.

“Frank Allen: Scribe Says Legislators Unfair to Organized Onion Eaters, Corpses”: After the legislature visited campus not long ago, they only have complaints about the student body being disrespectful, untidy, and ungrateful. It was brought to attention that the real reason they were upset was due to the Medics not letting them see the room where they keep the cadavers.

“Side Glances”: With small statements, the Aggies are talked about, the governor, the government, and Helen Keller.

“Letters to the Editor”: The first letter is from a faculty member about the semester system. They say that they support the three-quarter system and give many reasons of why it’s a good thing, as well as refuting the bad statements about it that were published in the Chronicle. The second letter is a term paper writer complaining about faculty members checking out books that are needed by students and not returning them.

“Meet the Gang: Two-Minute Portrait”: The man described today is the most eligible man on campus, turning out to be “King Neptune.” He is good-natured and hardworking, and everyone can call him a friend. Lastly, he is the editor of the Chronicle, fighting to create each edition longer.

“Richard H. Stephens: Self Discovery, Growth Should be Aim of University Students”: The Chronicle and Pen have overlooked the real dilemma of the college student in the change from quarter to semester. College should be a time of self-discovery for students, but instead they get caught up in the in the education system and routine, only looking forward to the quarters end. College education should really be helping in the aid of self-education rather than spoon-feeding the students.

“Staff Picks Big Seven Honor Five”: With so many close games and amazing personal performances, the Big Seven conference will end Friday. Sports scribes will start to pull out record books to pick an all-conference team. Outstanding player in the conference was Wyoming’s Bill Strannigan and Deb Smith was chosen as his running mate. Many other players were also mentioned.

“Chrony, Humbug Feud Goes to Basketball Floor”: Humbug staff beat Chronicle sports staff in a battle of wits at the Press Club banquet. The same staffs will now meet to compete in a basketball game tomorrow. Humbug editor, Roger Hammond accepted the challenge.

“Scribe Respects Precedent, Picks Star Soph Squad”: With the region sporting all-conferencing teams, here’s one only made up of sophomores. Each position and spot on the team has been filled with a specific sophomore from all over in the Big Seven conference.

“Greek, Indie Kings to Play Friday”: For the intramural basketball tournament, the top fraternity champs will face the independent winners Friday. Each team member of the Pi Kaps gets mentioned. The steady Beta Theta Pi is predicted to beat Sigma Nu’s bowling team for the fraternity bowling title. Entries have been received for the independent wrestling meet.

“No Opposition Only ‘Worry’ of ‘U’ Gunners”: There are several reasons that the Utes have a championship caliber pistol team. They had such an easy time in the telegraphic competition, they have resorted to competing against each other in the squad. Captain Al Rothofer, John Alley, Bill Overson, and Art Gebhart were all mentioned.

“Redskin Swimmers to Meet San Jose”: The Utah Redskins will take on one of the most powerful swimming schools on the Pacific Coast, San Jose State College. Utes gave San Jose a surprisingly close battle last year. Dahl Poulson and Bob Patrick were both mentioned.

Articles:

"Where Votes Count": The ASUU election is advertised and encourages more students to vote, since only one quarter of the entire student population has been voting in past elections. The elections have been going for 50 years at this point.

"Scribe Belittles Ability as Radio Genius in Refusing Job Offer": The article is written by Hank Mallon, a radio operator and student who discusses a job offer that he received from a large radio operation agency. He is also considering going into the foundation garment business, if all else fails.

"Here's an Answer": The article discusses the yearning for warmer weather that students experience towards the end winter. The author suggests transforming a small park on campus into a leisure area for students to relax and eat lunch. There may be pushback from the administration to spend funds on clean up and preparation of the area for student use, but it is worth it nonetheless.

“Our Freshman Class”: The freshmen edition of the Chronicle, two dozen freshmen students turned up to work on the publication. The students filled seven departments in preparing the only official freshman publication of the year.

“Off the Cuff”: The article goes off on several tangents. A magazine report says that suicide rates in New York increase whenever it rains for three days. The Betas are changing their names to Holmes to participate in Betty Waugh's column. Rod Heath has limited the participants in “U” day songfest to two numbers per person. Gorey, a student up for election, will not advertise in the Chronicle.

“World Conditions Bad; Hitler Plays Havoc with British Tea-Time”: This article is an opinion piece. Much of Europe has fallen to the Nazi regime, supposedly the best propaganda machine in the world. The British have welcomed Hitler, though if relations between Great Britain and Germany change, they can persist. Mussolini does not pose a threat to America and neither does Japan, though many Americans think so.

“Letters to The Editor”: Gordon Ray, a University of Utah student, argues that campus politics are unfair, with only one-fourteenth of student voters allowed to nominate officers that will represent the entire student population. Many students believe that campus politics are only a concern between fraternities and independents. He explains that is wrong, and encourages more students to vote.

“Two-Minute Portraits”: A description of the sophomore Chronicle editor, a woman, whose identity is yet to be revealed, beat out Bruce Turngreen and Chuck Lobb for her position. She is unaffiliated with any sorority but a member of Cwean, Spurs, and the press club. A photo of her is featured in the article.

“Capitol Chatter” By Howard S. Walker: Capitol Hill is busy with new legislation passing through Congress, and an overflow of 300,000 tourists visiting the city due to grim world conditions of other vacation destinations. Many senators, Supreme Court justices, and other governmental figures can be seen around Washington D.C., combined with several scenic attractions, the city is considered quite a scenic attraction.
